

VOICE

Youth Choir and Orchestra™

“Young musicians being a voice in this world for God.”

Voice, a youth choir and orchestra that seeks to glorify God through music.

Established by Simon Smith, a freelance musician, facilitator and educator. After studying Music at King's College London, Simon has worked as Head of Music and Director of Specialism at schools in Essex, Hampshire and the Wirral.

He has directed several youth choirs and orchestras and organised many concerts and international tours. He has now left the formal education sector to pursue a variety of projects involving music and young people. Simon is passionate about positively influencing and empowering the lives of others, using music to enrich, engage, inspire and as a means of sharing the truth, love and joy of God.

The Plan

Establish a network of regional Voice groups for young people 11-18 years old across the North West who meet on a regular basis.

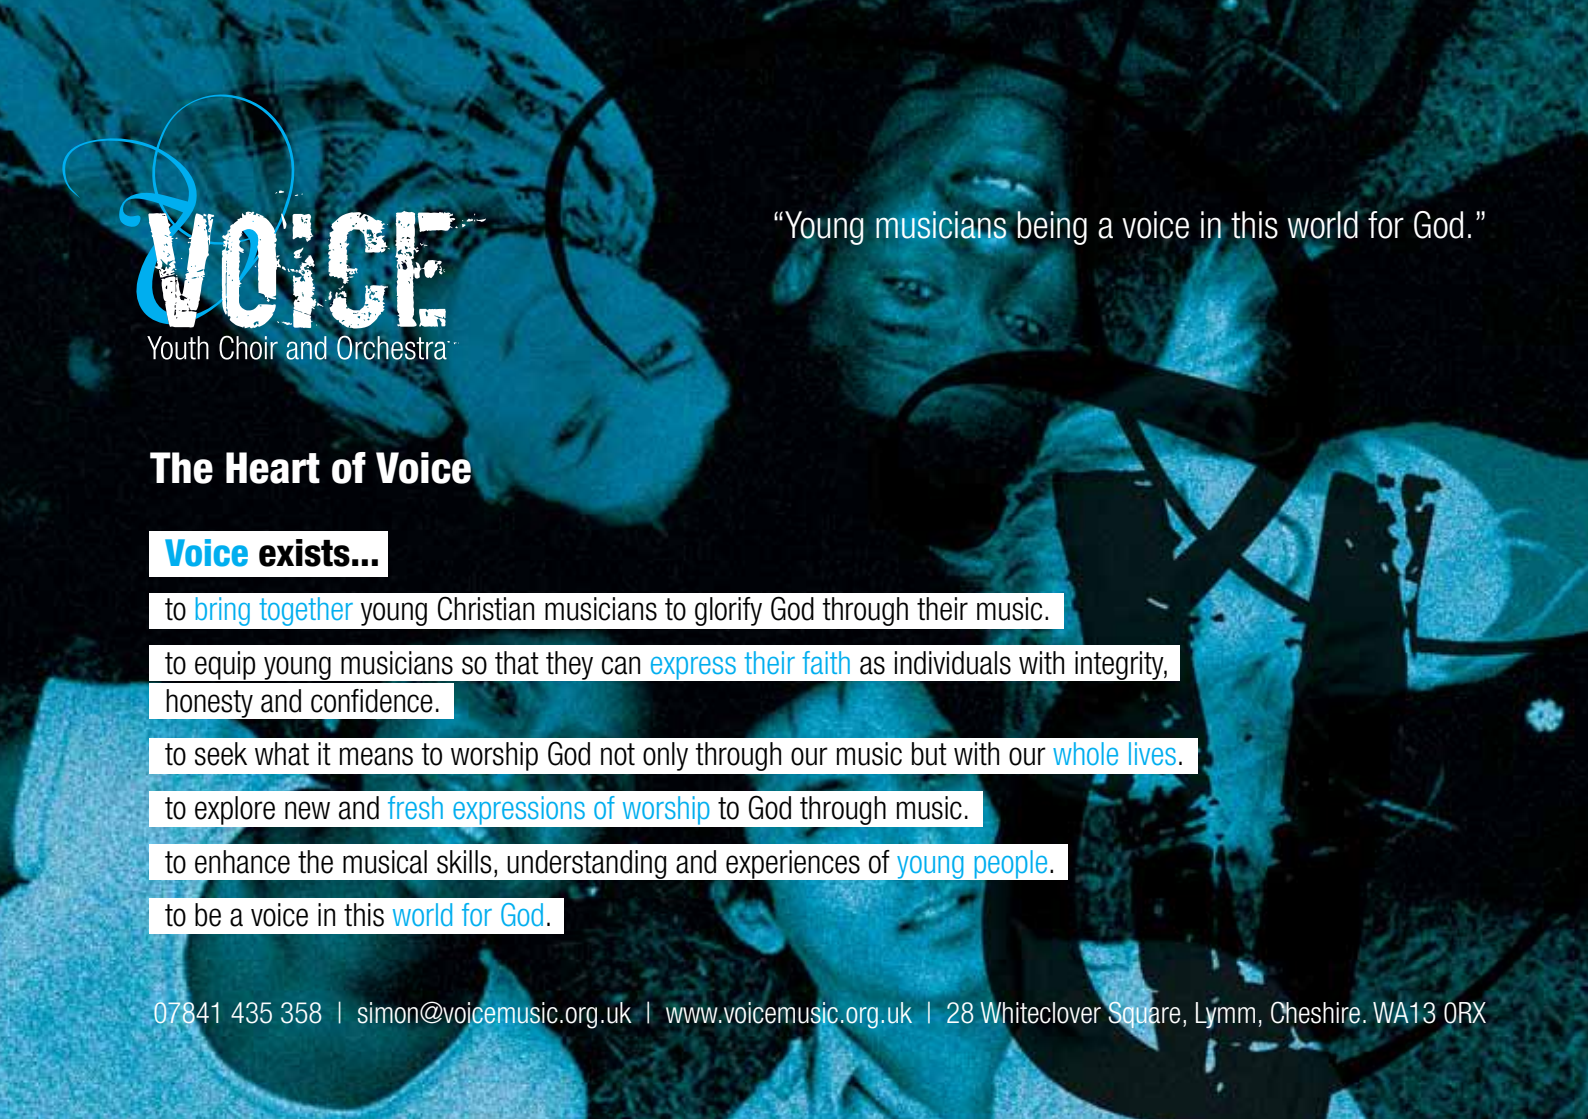

Bring these regional groups together for a three day residential in October.

Perform a series of regional concerts in churches, community venues and youth events.

Get Involved

If you would like to join a Voice group, would like to see a Voice group established in your area or would like any other information, please contact Simon using the details below.

The Heart of Voice

Voice exists...

to bring together young Christian musicians to glorify God through their music.

to equip young musicians so that they can express their faith as individuals with integrity, honesty and confidence.

to seek what it means to worship God not only through our music but with our whole lives.

to explore new and fresh expressions of worship to God through music.

to enhance the musical skills, understanding and experiences of young people.

to be a voice in this world for God.
